Spotting Heroes and Villains!

If you are anything like me, you have loads of books, comics or films, a tonne of things recorded from the TV and access to lots of on-demand or streaming websites. Stories and characters are **everywhere**, aren't they?

Your Task

Choose three of your favourite books, films, TV Programmes, comics—anything with characters. And have a go at filling in this table... This is an excellent excuse to watch/read your favourite characters in action!

Story	Hero	What does the hero want?	Villain	What does the villain want?
Lord of the Rings	Frodo Baggins the hobbit	To go on an adventure. To destroy the ring.	The Evil Lord Sauron	The ring of ultimate power. To rule all things.

Sometimes, stories might not seem to have clear villains, sometimes there's more than one villain, sometimes the villains (the 'force of antagonism') is in the hero's head and sometimes the villains are actually just misunderstood goodies!
